URY'S VERDICT AGAINST STAN= DARD OIL OCTOPUS IS "GUILTY"

ter Deliberating 32 Hours Verdict is Rendered at 4:35 O'clock This Morning---DefendantsWill Take an Appeal at Once.

indlay, Ohio, Oct., 19.–Special to the ependent.—The Standard Oil octopus eived a severe jolt in the Buckeye te, this morning, when after deliber g 32 hours the jury, in the case of State of Ohio against the Standard Company, returned a verdict of ilty", on the charge of conspiracy ust trade. The verdict was rendered .35 o'clock this morning.

he case was one of the most bitterly ested legal fights in the history of Buckeye State and aroused unusual rest. The Standard Oil Company es that the court has any jurisdiction the case, and has announced its ntions of taking an appeal.

osecutor Davis showed that there r had been an actual cecession of Standard Oil trust of 1882 although orm of the organization had been ged. The main point of the defense made in fact that while the evidence red all the so called subsidiary com s to be owned by the Standard Oil pany of New Jersey, not one sylla- f evidence had been introduced to that the delendant company was wned.

ortly after the verdict of guilty had rendered, Virgie P. Rhine, attorney he Standard Oil Company, in an in- ew, made the following statement.

have nothing to say in regard to verdict except that I believe the court has no jurisdiction in this nd we will take an appeal at once."

BLOOD HOUNDS ARE ORDERED

Officer Watts Will Now Run Down Criminals With Aid of Canines.

High Constable Watts and George Boes have sent an order to the Lexington, Kentucky, dog kennels for two thoroughbred English blood hounds to be shipped at the earliest possible moment. Mr. Watt realizes the great necessity of a pair of these dogs in the community in order to run down criminals and will insist on having them shipped at once.

It has been impossible to get grown dogs as Mr. Watts has tried to get them in several of the larger cities. The dogs ordered are quite small and will be trained by the officer himself. Mr. Watts will be the second officer in Westmoreland county to own blood hounds, Constable Frye of Latrobe being the other.

MEETING IN NEW YORK TO= DAY OF RAILROAD OFFICIALS

To Determine Whether or Not Interchangeable Mileage Book Will be Good Both East and West of Pittsburg.

Action will be taken at a joint passenger meeting in New York today to determine whether the interchangeable mileage books east and west of Pittsburg shall be issued at $20 or $25. Action was postponed at the special Central Passenger Association meeting at Chicago Wednesday until after the joint meeting with the Trunk Line association today.

Passenger Traffic Manager Ford and General Passenger Agent Moody of the Pennsylvania lines west left last night for New York to attend the meeting. Asked about the subject of an interchangeable book and what it would likely sell at, Col. Moody replied:

"That is a very grave question. There are 59 roads with 59 ideas interesting themselves. It would be presumptuous and impertinent for any one road to say what will be done. It is a very important subject and must be weighed from all points of view. I look for developments from the joint passenger meeting in New York tomorrow, but just what they will be I cannot tell. I do not think there will be a single book good east and west of Pittsburg, as has been suggested."

An officer of one of C. P. A. lines is quoted as saying that the proposed $20 transferrable book of the individual roads may be a breaking of the Hepburn act. This law says plainly that a road must not charge a greater or smaller rate for service than that specified in its tariffs in effect at that time. The new ticket, according to this man, would allow those who can afford to own such a ticket to ride at 2 cents a mile, while others are compelled to pay 2½ cents. He said a similar manipulation of freight rates would bring a howl in a moment about discrimination.

WHO OWNS THE PUMPKINS?

This Question May Yet be the Means of Stirring up Some Dominant Points in Law

There are many funny things happen in Wireton and that little nest, in addition to furnishing considerable business for the Westmoreland county courts, can also furnish much amusement for the community, as well as excitement for the residents. The Charleroi Daily Mail of yesterday contained the following article with regards to the ownership of three pumpkins:

"John Lobosky and Harry Lepristo, two foreigners living at Wireton are at present scrapping over the possession of three pumpkins that grew from seed planted by Lobosky.

"A few weeks after the vines were up, runners branched off in all directions and two crept through the fence into Lepristo's garden. It appears that the vines in Lepristo's garden are the only ones that did any good and three nice pumpkins are there to harvest.

"Lobosky attempted to enter the garden owned by Lepristo and the latter informed him if he disturbed the pumpkins he would have him arrested for trespassing, while Lobosky threatens suit against Lepristo for larceny, accusing him of retaining that which was the property of another. Lobosky claims to have planted the seed and worked the soil in which the vine grows while Lepristo claims that during the course of the natural growth of the pumpkin vine, it spread out and utilized a certain tract of land loased by him and that the vine was his and the fruit thereof and that he would retain it if forced to resort to law."

When suffering daily torture
From backache, rheumatic pain,
Any ill of kidneys or bladder,
Turn to Doan's Kidney Pills.
A cure endorsed by thousands.
Read an old man's tribute.

Sidney Justus, fruit dealer, of Mentor, Ohio, says: "I was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills of a severe case of kidney trouble of eight or ten years' standing. I suffered the most severe backache and other pains in the region of the kidneys. These were especially severe when stooping to lift anything, and often I could hardly straighten my back. The aching was bad in the daytime, but just as bad at night, and I was always lame in the morning. I was bothered with rheumatic pains and dropsical swelling of the feet. The urinary passages were painful, and the secretions were discolored and so free that often I had to rise at night. I felt tired all day. Half a box served to relieve me, and three boxes effected a permanent cure."

SIDNEY JUSTUS.

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Justus will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

Here's Just the Right Bowel Laxative

Gentle, Sure—Pleasant to Take—A Tried and True, Genuine, Nature's Remedy.

If you do not have free, easy and regular movements of the bowels you lack the prime and first essential of good health. There's more harm done than mere uncomfortableness, sluggishness and bilious ness—retention of food wastes in the bowels pollutes, irritates and poisons. You make the circulatory system—the blood—a scavenger instead of a fountain of purest life and untainted vitality. The ills of constipation are not trifling but nearly always are fraught with vital significance. Seek your relief in Nature! Accept the gentle, natural aid of Lax-ets! Be sure not to force and crowd the delicate organs of the stomach! Avoid all the danger of powerful and unknown medicines! Your safety and your health are always secured—if you take Laxets. The formula is on every box—show it to your family physician. Laxets are put up in a flat metal case in handy tablet form—one tablet taken before meals or on retiring always brings relief. Pleasing to take—the most potent yet gentle of all remedies—a genuine help of Nature's—a bowel laxative which cures constipation. Recommended and for sale by

BERRY CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS IN BANK DEAL

"Reform" State Treasurer in Business Along "Practical Lines."

BORROWS OF STATE DEPOSITORY

Startling Revelation of Tactics Worse Than Those Which This "Good Man" So Long Condemned In Others.

William H. Berry, state treasurer, professional reformer, has been caught with the goods on him.

He has been found to be engaged in borrowing money from a depository of state funds for a private enterprise in which he is heavily interested He had to admit this fact, but in trying to explain why he did it and how he did it, he lied, deliberately lied, and he was caught lying and the facts were proven against his misrepresentation by the records of Delaware county.

Mr. Berry, who is a sanctimonious, "holier than thou individual," who has been making all sorts of charges against Republican officials and who is now on the stump for Emery and his colleagues on the Democratic state ticket, has been shown to be as practical as the most practical of the professional politicians and he is, in the vernacular of the machine politician, "out for the stuff."

Berry is a member of the state board which designates the depositories of state funds and besides has in his power the right to draw from or add to any deposit in any banking institution which carries a deposit of state funds.

When Mr. Berry went into office as state treasurer, the Harrisburg Trust company carried a state deposit of about $200,000. Since Berry has been treasurer this sum has been jumped to over $600,000.

Berry at first applied to a Baltimore Surety company to go on his official bond, but he discovered that it would cost him about $2500 a year for a bond which would have eaten up a good portion of his salary. About this time negotiations were opened with the Harrisburg Trust company, which finally went on Berry's bond for $500,000 for a mere "nominal sum."

Good Thing For Trust Company.

The trust company does not appear to have lost anything by that operation.

Its deposits of state funds have grown to great proportions, and it has been honored by the state treasurer in the capacity of a customer in the loan department.

The Fields Brick company, of Chester, is a concern in which State Treasurer Berry is heavily interested

The books show that the incorporators of the brick concern were William H. Berry, of Chester, 50 shares; Holstein H. Fields, 25 shares, and John W. Fields, 25 shares. William H. Berry appeared as treasurer. The charter indicated that Mr. Berry's interest was for cash invested, while that of the Fields brothers was for real estate, good will and personal property turned over to the corporation.

Mr Berry makes these admissions:

"The Field boys had a brick yard in Chester, and were hard pressed for money. I agreed to take hold of the thing and put up $14,000 in cash against their property, and we formed a corporation with $50,000 capital, I taking 50 per cent. of the stock.

"I found when I came to look the plant over that a railroad siding was necessary. To get this siding put in it was necessary to buy a lot of land. I did not feel like investing in any more stock, but I was willing to buy some bonds. Others were willing to take bonds. So the $50,000 corporate mortgage was executed to the Harrisburg Trust Company as trustee of the bonds."

"How did you come to select the Harrisburg Trust Company in the transaction?"

"Well, that seems to me the only thing in this transaction that may seem peculiar. The fact is that I didn't want it to leak out that I was after land That is the only reason I did not go to a Chester trust company. The Harrisburg Trust Company agreed to finance it, and I went ahead to get my options. We bought 30 acres of land, and we only intend to actually issue $30,000 in bonds. There will be an acre of land behind every bond."

Berry's attempted explanation that he went to Harrisburg to negotiate the loan so that the fact would not be known in Delaware county, and possibly raise the price of land which he desired to purchase, fell very flat when it was revealed that all of the details of the transaction were attended to by the Delaware County Trust Company and the recording fees were paid by it.

Why Berry should finance his deal from a Harrisburg state depository because he wanted to keep it secret, and then go to his own town and have the searches made and the deeds recorded, is something that puzzles officials in Delaware county.

Moreover, the records show that this Delaware County Trust Company is the holder of an original ironclad first mortgage for $16,000 on Fields' Bros.' brickyard.

If, as Berry says, there are 30 acres of ground behind the $30,000 in bonds which Berry says will be issued under the $50,000 mortgage, the records do not show it. They do show that the original yard of Field Bros, comprised eight acres. Against this is the $16,000 mortgage.

The other new purchase besides the five acres from Laidlaw, as shown by the records, is five acres from Evelyn Sibley. The total value of the land acquired since State Treasurer Berry turned the concern into a stock company and then placed his $50,000 mortgage, is $9750.

This is all the land holdings of "Berry's brickyard" that are disclosed by the books of the Recorder of Deeds' office in Delaware county.

Trust companies do not usually take $50,000 corporate mortgages on things not a matter of official record.

Skeptical as to Explanation.

Delaware county officials who were familiar with these facts were, therefore, skeptical as to the explanation as to why the State Treasurer chose the largest state depositor in Pennsylvania to finance this business venture. The news that this same trust company which Berry has favored his more than $600,000 in the general funds of the state was also a surprise to those who knew him as an ardent reformer. This surprise was not lessened by Berry's admission that for his bond for $500,000 he was only compelled to pay a nominal fee.

The usual fee of security companies for taking such a bond is $2500 a year.

It was not considered remarkable that the State Treasurer should look with kindly eye on the Harrisburg Trust Company.

Those who read of the transaction were startled when they recalled the strong demand for treasury reform in last Democratic platform and the vehement speeches which Berry and Homer Castle made concerning politicians who borrowed money from banks which hold state funds.

Although Berry's entry into brick making did not begin until after he became State Treasurer, his friends in Chester are confident that it will be a successful venture. Berry is known in his home town as a shrewd business man.

But what is causing no end of gossip, especially in "reform circles," is the fact that Berry should so soon after his election engage in transactions of a character which he and his associates have for years denounced.

"Old Timers" Put to Shame.

The fact is that he went further than any of his predecessors.

The reformers did not have an opportunity to criticise any state treasurer for borrowing from state depositories. There is no record of such a condition of affairs in the history of the state Treasury under Republican administration

There have been criticisms from time to time of politicians supporting the party in power for borrowing from banking institutions having deposits of state funds.

When the Enterprise Bank failed in Allegheny it was Mr. Berry and his Democratic colleagues who went up and down the state frantically decrying a system which would permit politicians borrowing from banks carrying deposits of state funds.

But there never was a charge that a state treasurer was engaged in that line of business until Mr. Berry, "the reformer," was elected.

The state did not lose a dollar by the failure of the Enterprise Bank, which afforded so much political capital for Mr. Berry last fall, as every penny of state funds deposited in that bank has been paid back, with interest, into the state treasury.

The late Senator Quay, while having no connection with the state treasury, borrowed money from the People's Bank in Philadelphia upon approved collateral, such as any other citizen might do, but the Berrys and the Emery and the other "reformers" set up a hue and cry throughout the commonwealth, and painted him as a law breaker and an enimy of the people.

Mr. Berry, as State Treasurer, is now discovered to be a large borrower from an institution from which he can draw large sums of money any day, might cripple the trust company financially in case of a run, and yet he was chosen as a "reform" candidate for State Treasurer, and he is still nightly upon the stump demanding the election of a "reform candidate for Governor" in the person of that eminent "reformer," Lewis Emery, Jr., of Pure Oil fame, of "Brewery and Church" notoriety, and of other scandalous conditions that are now the subject of general criticism

A FOOL AND A ROBBER

(Copyright, 1906, by Homer Sprague.)

My uncle, Joseph Fuller, always kept his money in his house on his farm. A farmer living near had an idiot son. From the time he was five years old he had been a visitor at Uncle Joe's. He sometimes remained there overnight. The lad and I always got along together very well, and after I had known him for three or four years I discovered that curiosity was his leading trait.

He wasn't curious as other boys are, but after arriving at the age of ten he took to running around the country.

On a certain night when I was at Uncle Joe's and when I was fourteen years old uncle and Aunt Mary counted over $1,000 in bills they had in the house. This counting was done in their bedroom after I was in bed, and the package was then hidden under the carpet. A noise was heard at the window, and Uncle Joe went out to see if any one was spooking round, but made no discovery. Next day he went away to buy some cattle, and during the forenoon things went on as usual. Just before noon the fool came over, and when the meal was ready he took his seat at the table with the rest. There were two hired men, and after dinner had been disposed of they went back to their work in a distant field.

I had been sent to roll some old cider and vinegar barrels out of the cellar and rinse them as well. I made signs to the boy to help me, but he shook his head and sat down on the doorstep and kept up such a grinning and chuckling that Aunt Mary noticed it after awhile and wondered what he had been up to. At about half past 1 o'clock a well dressed, business looking man drove up to the gate in a buggy, hitched his horse and came in. He asked me at the well if Mr. Fuller was home, and when I answered in the negative he seemed considerably put out I followed him to the kitchen door, where he introduced himself to my aunt and explained that he had cattle to sell. After a little talk he began to tell us that he had seen a man hurt on the highway, and gradually we all came to crowd into the kitchen. Of a sudden the man pulled a revolver and said:

"Sit down, the three of you, and if one of you utters a single yell I will shoot you dead!"

I thought the fellow was joking and was slow about sitting down. Aunt Mary was also slow in catching on, and as she finally took a chair she was pale as death. The fool laughed and sucked at his finger and seemed to consider the thing a good joke.

"Now, then, understand me," continued the man when we were seated before him. "There is money in this house. I want it. I'm going to get it if I have to kill the three of you. What are you grinning at?"

This last remark was addressed to the fool and I explained that he was a victim of misfortune. I was astonished, but not frightened. I had heard of robbers, but this man didn't come up to my notion of one at all. Neither was I aware of the large sum of money in the house. The man hauled off to cuff the fool, but thinking better of it he looked at Aunt Mary and said:

"Get me that money Get every dollar there is in the house. If you keep any back I'll burn the roof over your head."

"Please sir," she began, and I knew in a second that she wanted to deny that there was any money in the house. She couldn't tell a lie, however. She was too good a Christian for that. She did hold out, however, until the man cocked the weapon in her face, and then she crept into the bedroom to dig the roll out from under the carpet. A sudden ejaculation came from her, and she appeared at the door to cry out:

"It's gone! Some one has robbed us of every dollar!"

"Don't lie to me, woman!" exclaimed the man.

"But I'm not lying. Last night we had $1,000, and hid it under the corner of the carpet there Some one has taken it since then."

The man had to believe her. Her distress and sincerity were too evident. He fell to swearing and for five minutes the air was blue with his profanity. During this time the fool had his hands over his mouth to prevent himself from laughing aloud, and was wondering if Aunt Mary wouldn't faint away. She said it was barely possible that Uncle Joe might have taken it away with him, thinking at the last moment that he might have need of it, and it was probably this that prevented the man from questioning us two boys. He was terribly put out, but after making a search of the bedroom and kicking things around he took his departure and drove off at a furious pace.

When it was all over Aunt Mary flopped down in a faint. As I ran for water the fool ran toward the orchard. I had just revived my aunt, who was crying, when the boy came in with the biggest kind of a grin on his face and the $1,000 in his hand, and we had another circus for five minutes.

The fool had been looking through the window the night before as the money was being counted. He had seen where it was hidden, and next forenoon had crawled into the room and stolen it and hid it in a hollow stump in the orchard. But for the coming of the robber he might never have given it up. He seemed to understand what the man had come for, and he enjoyed his discomfiture, and he perhaps reasoned that he couldn't bring Aunt Mary out of her faint quicker than to give her a sight of the roll. At any rate he saved the family $1,000, and they could never do too much afterward to show their gratitude.

AT THE THEATRE

Pierce Kingsley's great American play is not one of the kind that some managers puts out for one season to catch the dollars and send some other catch-penny affair out the next year. "Deserted at the Altar" is now in its fourth year, and will return year after year and will never wear out its welcome To do this a play must have merit, and this 'Deserted at the Altar" surely has From the rise of the curtain on the first act until its final fall there is not a dull moment. Tears, laughter and cheers predominate throughout This play was written to please all classes of theatregoers, rich and poor alike. Will appear at the Monessen Opera House, tonight.

Without Uncle Tom and Peck's Bad Boy once each year, we would think our dramatic season incomplete. We have Uncle Tom year after year and it is always the same, there being no way to change it, but this season Peck's Bad Boy has radical changes, in fact all the old material that has made so many people laugh for the last twenty years, and which we have come to know almost as well as the actors do themselves, has been discarded and an entirely new version prepared. The old familiar characters of the Grocery man Duffy, Major and Mrs. Peck, the Chum, Servant girl, His Sweetheart and Henry Peck the Bad Boy are still the ones to create the fun, and a new one introduced who will aid and abet and add new opportunities for funny situations. Each character is portrayed by competent people, and an exceptionally good singing company is one of the main features.

Operatic selections, duets, trios, quartettes and choruses are finally rendered. Many novel specialities introduced and with all these and an entirely new equipment of scenery and costumes, this always funny farce comedy, is made better than ever. To be presented at the Monessen Opera House, Saturday evening, October 20
